One-Day or One-Trial Jury Service

Statewide implementation of one-day or one-trial jury service is one of the key reforms in the courts' ongoing efforts to improve jury service in California.

How It Works

Under the one-day or one-trial system, prospective jurors need appear for only one day unless they are assigned to a courtroom for jury selection. At some courts, those summoned may need only to telephone the court or visit a Web site to determine if they must appear at court.

- If they are not chosen for a trial or assigned to a courtroom for jury selection on the first day of their scheduled service, they have satisfied their obligation for 12 months.
- If chosen for a trial, service in that trial to verdict satisfies the juror's obligation for at least 12 months.
- If assigned to a courtroom for jury selection and not chosen for the jury, dismissal by a judicial officer satisfies the juror's obligation for at least 12 months.

While jury duty remains a mandate of state law, the system recognizes the realities of the workplace and minimizes the impact of jury service on businesses and employees.

History

The Judicial Council adopted rule 2.1002 of the California Rules of Court and enacted the one-day or one-trial policy in state courts effective July 1, 1999. At the time the rule was adopted, more than 20 superior courts in California's 58 counties reported they had already adopted a one-day or one-trial system. By May 2002, with the successful implementation of one-day or one-trial jury service at the Superior Court of Los Angeles County, the new system was effective statewide.

Rule 2.1002—Length of juror service

California Rules of Court, rule 2.1002(c) states that “[e]ach trial court system must implement a juror management program under which a person has fulfilled his or her jury service obligation when the person has:

- “(1) Served on one trial until discharged;
- “(2) Been assigned on one day to one or more trial departments for jury selection and served through the completion of jury selection or until excused by the jury commissioner;
- “(3) Attended court but was not assigned to a trial department for selection of a jury before the end of that day;
- “(4) Served one day on call; or
- “(5) Served no more than five court days on telephone standby.”

Benefits for Employees and Employers

The one-day or one-trial system takes the waiting out of jury duty. Before the system was enacted, prospective jurors had to be available for up to 10 days in some counties. Now, potential jurors need to report for only one day to find out whether they will continue to serve.

For employers, this system recognizes that jury service may pose challenges to both employers and employees and reduces unproductive waiting time and the potential for lost income. The system also reduces uncertainty about when and for how long employees will be unavailable for work.
